Chapter 389: The Shadows of the Past

The Unseen Forces

The multiverse had always been a complex web of interconnected realms, each existing within its own set of rules and laws. The Divine Triad—Sung Jin-Woo, Ashborn, and Sung Su-Ho—had ruled over the Heavenly Realm Universe for eons, bringing balance to the multiverse. Their strength and wisdom were unparalleled, their influence stretching across countless universes.

Yet, as Sung Jin-Woo sat upon his throne, overlooking the True Absolute One Domain Realm, he could feel something stirring beneath the surface. The disturbance that had begun to ripple through the multiverse was no ordinary anomaly. It was the emergence of something far older, something that had been waiting in the shadows of the cosmos for eons.

In the farthest reaches of the outer multiverse, the Watchers Beyond Time had begun to stir. These ancient entities, who existed outside the very fabric of reality itself, were the true architects of the multiverse. Their influence reached back to the beginning of time, and their intentions were shrouded in mystery.

Sung Jin-Woo could sense their presence, like an ancient whisper in the void. He knew that these beings were not to be taken lightly. Their power transcended even the gods, and their purpose was unclear.

The Awakening of the Watchers

The Watchers Beyond Time had remained hidden for eons, observing the growth of the multiverse and its many inhabitants. They had seen the rise of gods, mortals, and countless civilizations. Yet, as the Divine Triad’s power grew, their very existence began to stir the Watchers.

The Watchers were not beings of simple matter or energy. They were manifestations of pure concepts—forces that defined the very essence of the multiverse itself. Time, space, creation, and destruction were but fragments of their true power.

As the Divine Triad continued to expand their influence, the Watchers began to question their presence in the multiverse. The balance of power was shifting, and they could sense the impending clash between the Divine Triad and the forces that lay beyond time.

Sung Jin-Woo’s Warning

Back in the True Absolute One Domain Realm, Sung Jin-Woo felt the weight of his responsibility grow heavier with each passing moment. The Watchers were not beings to be feared lightly, and their return threatened not only the Heavenly Realm Universe but the entire multiverse.

His wings fluttered behind him, the immense power contained within them thrumming with energy. Ashborn and Sung Su-Ho appeared beside him, their gazes sharp with concern.

“Jin-Woo,” Ashborn said, his voice resonating with the power of celestial light. “The Watchers are awakening. I can feel their influence growing stronger.”

Sung Su-Ho’s eyes burned with a black flame, his body radiating the immense heat of the True Dragon God Realm. “Their intentions are unclear. But we must prepare for their arrival. Whatever they seek, it will not be easy to face.”

Sung Jin-Woo nodded, his expression grim. “The multiverse will not fall to them. We will stand against whatever comes, together.”

The Meeting of the Divine Triad

The Divine Triad gathered within the True Absolute One Domain Realm, their forms towering over the multiverse. Gabriel, Azrael, Michael, Samael, Uriel, and Amenadiel stood at their side, their armies of archangels, dark archangels, battle angels, arch-celestials, and arch-dragons ready for battle.

“Every realm we govern is at risk,” Sung Jin-Woo said, his voice filled with authority. “The Watchers Beyond Time are not to be underestimated. Their power is beyond comprehension.”

Ashborn stepped forward, his light flickering with the energy of countless stars. “We’ve faced threats before, but nothing like this. We cannot allow the multiverse to be consumed by their influence.”

Sung Su-Ho’s black flames flickered in agreement. “We must secure the multiverse’s future. If the Watchers seek to disrupt the balance, we must ensure they are stopped.”

The Call to Action

With the Watchers drawing closer, the Divine Triad knew that they could no longer remain passive. They would need to act quickly, before the Watchers could make their move.

Sung Jin-Woo turned toward the Third World Tree, its branches stretching out across the realm. He could feel the immense energy of the tree pulsing in harmony with his own power. It was a symbol of life, of growth, of the multiverse itself. Yet, even this symbol of creation seemed to tremble in the presence of the Watchers.

“I will not let the multiverse fall,” Sung Jin-Woo said, his voice resolute. “We will gather our forces and stand against the Watchers. Our armies will be ready.”

The Convergence of Armies

The celestial armies and dragon armies assembled, their ranks stretching for eons. Every archangel, dark archangel, arch-celestial, and arch-dragon stood united under the command of the Divine Triad.

Gabriel, Azrael, Samael, Uriel, Michael, and the Nine Divine Dragons stood at the front, their wings unfurled and ready for battle. The armies of angels, archangels, dragons, and celestial beings formed a massive wall of power, a force unlike anything the multiverse had ever seen.

The clones of Sung Jin-Woo, each one a reflection of his power, spread throughout the multiverse, ensuring that no enemy would slip through their defenses. They would guard every timeline, every universe, and every realm from the Watchers' influence.

A New Era Begins

The Watchers had long awaited the right moment to strike. But now, the Divine Triad stood united in their strength, prepared to defend the multiverse from whatever threat the Watchers posed.

The Heavenly Realm Universe would no longer remain untouched. As the multiverse teetered on the brink of uncertainty, the Divine Triad was ready to face whatever challenge the Watchers Beyond Time had planned.

The battle for the future of all realms had begun.
